Televised information film to mark the 50th anniversary of the European flag (November 2005)

In 1955, Europe faced an important choice: what should its flag look like? Like this? Or maybe like this? And what about this? In the end, the winning design was chosen. This flag was originally adopted by the Council of Europe, which today includes 46 countries. Since 1986, it has also been the flag for the European Union.

Fifty years, two organisations. One flag, one Europe.
