Short biography of Jean-Pierre Gouzy

Jean-Pierre Gouzy was born on 3 June 1925 in Antananarivo, Madagascar, where his father was a customs official. He began his career as a journalist at a very young age. After the Second World War, he worked for various Paris-based newspapers and, later on, for foreign daily newspapers. At the same time, he was involved in movements in France which were working for the unification of Europe on a federal basis. In 1946, he became a member of the Executive of the French Movement for the United States of Europe and then of the French Union of Federalists.

Jean-Pierre Gouzy attended the Congress of Europe, held in May 1948 in The Hague and organised by the International Committee of the Movements for European Unity (ICMEU), both as a journalist and as a member of the French delegation. Shortly afterwards, he became Secretary-General then President of the European Federalist Movement in France. He remained in this post until 1973. He was also a member of the Federal Committee of the Union of European Federalists (UEF) and subsequently became Vice-President of this organisation. Jean-Pierre Gouzy was appointed Deputy General Secretary then General Secretary of the Centre International de Formation Européenne (International Centre for European Training — CIFE) upon its establishment in Nice in 1954. This Centre was led by his friend Alexandre Marc, a key figure in federalist and personalist circles. Gouzy became Vice-President of the Centre in 1983. Between 1960 and 1990, he also taught at the Institut Européen des Hautes Études Internationales (European Institute of High International Studies).

From 1963 onwards, Jean-Pierre Gouzy was Editor-in-Chief then Political Director of the journal L'Europe en formation, and in 1969 he won the European journalism prize awarded by the Commission of the European Communities. He was elected International Vice-President of the Association of European Journalists in 1974 and became International President in 1978 and Honorary President in 1982.

Jean-Pierre Gouzy is the author of numerous publications. Since 1978, he has been Vice-President of the Maison de l'Europe in Paris.
