House of Commons,

London, S.W.1

My dear Prime Ministers,

I have now had an opportunity of consulting my colleagues upon the terms of a possible settlement in India as you and the Viceroy put before us last night. As a result I am in a position to convey to you that if those terms are ~~made good~~, so that there is an effective acceptance of Dominion status for the several parts of a divided India, the Conservative Party will agree to facilitate the passage this Session of the legislation necessary to confer Dominion status upon such several parts of India.

Believe me,

Yours sincerely,

Winston S. Churchill
